*...I want to train up my boys to be respectable men
To impress, not with surface appeal,
but with what they have within.
I hope, in fact, I truly pray that
I'm bringing them up in the right way.*

*And I hope they know and will forever realize
that they are the glitter in my eyes.*

*No matter what life brings, whether together or apart
they will always be the very beat of my heart.*

*they will always be the very beat of my heart
no matter what life brings, whether together or apart
that they are the glitter in my eyes.*

And I hope they know and will forever realize

I'm bringing them up in the right way.
